Here's your chance to complete your professional reading list with the most comprehensive, most significant journal in the field of alcoholism studies—Alcoholism: Clinical and Experimental Research.

Nine times a year, you'll get original research articles on alcoholism, alcohol-induced syndromes, and organ damage. The basic sciences—including biochemistry, experimental neurology and psychology, psychiatry, and physiology—are all represented, as are clinical science (including epidemiology and work with human subjects) and the therapeutic professions. Expert critiques of timely publications, abstracts from important international meetings, and society news and announcements complete this invaluable update.

As the leading journal in the substance abuse category, Alcoholism attracts some of the finest minds in research today. Distinguished editors from The Research Society on Alcoholism carefully select all the important results you need for your laboratory or office work. Pharmacologists, toxicologists, researchers, psychiatrists, neuroscientists, and physicians with an interest in alcoholism research and liver disease, will find Alcoholism a valuable resource.

Roy Caine stands out as a fundamental thinker and a doer. He will continue to be just as prominent when the history of the whole subject of transplant surgery comes to be written.

Dr Stephen Lock

Art, Surgery and Transplantation describes Professor Calne’s experiences in the field of transplantation, how art affects the work of a surgeon and the perspectives of the transplant patient and donor. The text is beautifully illustrated with over one hundred of his paintings depicting all aspects of transplant surgery.

Professor Sir Roy Calne, F.R.S.
University of Cambridge, UK

Professor Sir Roy Calne is recognised as one of the world’s leading transplant surgeons and also as a gifted artist. He has played an influential role in the development of transplantation surgery and has pioneered the use of the two main drugs used to prevent graft rejection, azathioprine (Imuran®) and cyclosporin (Sandimmun® and Neoral®). He now heads one of the leading transplant centres in the world and actively campaigns to increase public awareness of the benefit of transplantation techniques.

In addition, art and painting have always been a major influence in his life. His early work consisted of landscapes and still life studies, however, in recent years he has concentrated on producing portraits of his patients and colleagues at Addenbrooke’s Hospital, Cambridge, UK.
